After a little more than a half year on the job as Executive Director, I have a growing list of what, exactly, gives the Frye Art Museum its unique identity. Beyond the museum's storied history and its unconventionally free admission, at the top of the list I place a mindset that has flourished for 70+ years. The Frye is an institution with an incredible attitude of experimentation and hospitality. We welcome artists and community makers to experiment, push the boundaries of their practices, and be daring with their creativity. The outcomes are delightfully unexpected because of this way of working.

This mentality prevailed throughout the Frye's 2022 program, first led by my predecessor Joe Rosa and then by Interim Director and Chief Curator Amanda Donnan. Our expert colleagues and collaborators brought to life an astonishing eleven exhibitions. Some explored the slippery ground between representation and abstraction: the eponymously titled Christina Quarles took figurative imagery to the edge of legibility, and Romare Beardon: Abstraction, a powerful exhibition of early works, showed how mid-century era painting and assemblage informed the artist's better-known collaged scenes of urban life. Other exhibitions featured significant new production by artists based in the Pacific Northwest, like Christopher Paul Jordan and Srijon Chowdury, as well as Stefan Gonzales and Molly Jae Vaughan. And we were thrilled to offer a radically fresh take on the presentation of our collection organized by the artist/research collective known as ESTAR(SER). THE THIRD, MEANING: ESTAR(SER) Installs the Frye Collection displayed artworks in groups of three, showcasing new relationships amongst various works in the Frye's delightfully broad and quirky holdings.

Other highlights in 2022 include the triumphant post-Covid return of beloved programs, including the 10th anniversary season of our preschooler story hour Small Frye: Storytelling + Art in partnership with Seattle Children's Theatre. We ventured into new territory with a pop-up workshop led by the cultishly popular Dance Church, held in the galleries of Jeremy Shaw's hallucinatory Liminals exhibition. And we were honored to welcome to the museum's campus The Memory Hub, a new outpost of the University of Washington's Memory and Brain Wellness Center, and a vital partner for our groundbreaking Creative Aging programs.

I would like to express my gratitude to our brilliant and hard-working staff team, to the Frye Foundation and our unceasingly supportive Board of Directors, and the myriad supporters who contributed to the year's success. I also offer sincere thanks to our members, whose commitment to the museum and its communities inspires us daily. It is because of all of you that the Frye forges ahead each year as an creative nexus for innovative art, bold artists, and diverse audiences.
